Display of introducing genetically-modified food

The picture above shows a display of genetically-modified food. The display items are three boards having information that talks about genetically-modified food, a car showing the food that can be produced by genetically-modified food and some games. Through the games, we can know more about the genetically-modified food. It is very interesting and special.

The display gives the definition of genetically-modified food, the advantages of having genetically-modified food, the doubt that people usually have as well as some examples. The display solved my doubts about the genetically-modified food, such as will people more likely to have cancer after eating genetically-modified food, etc. As the information that the display provided is precise and concise, which let the visitors learn and know more about genetically-modified food quickly. Overall speaking, this visit is very meaningful and enjoyable.
